

Some members of your community may still think pet cats should roam freely rather than stay indoors, or in pet-proofed outdoor areas. But according to scientists, if cats have their five basic needs met, they are much safer staying at home (and so is local native wildlife!).

If you'd like to help your constituents learn how to set up a safe, comfortable and interesting feline-friendly home, direct them to our Safe and Happy Cats website. It can be easy and affordable to create a purrefect place to live and play, and to help keep your community's cats safe and happy at home.

☆ Safe cats are happy cats!

The management of unowned and semi-owned domestic cats is a challenging area. So the Australian Institute of Animal Management (AIAM) has designed a brief survey to help identify the different types of strategies being used by local councils, including the level of collaboration, funding allocated, perceived impact, key challenges and success factors.

Even if your council doesn't have a program in place, your feedback is invaluable as we assess the situation nationwide.
